FLVME

FLVME Rapper/ Record Producer

Johannesburg-based rapper and record producer FLVME (pronounced: flame) is one of South Africa's most refined and enduring hip-hop voices. Born Lesego Kyle Mnyandu in Vosloorus, his music is defined by restraint, clarity, and a deep understanding of tone, space, and emotional weight.

After first gaining industry exposure through Ambitiouz Entertainment's The Wrecking Crew in 2016, FLVME launched his solo career in 2019, steadily building a catalog that prioritised longevity over trend-chasing.

While early releases established his foundation, it was projects and records such as CLOUDS, the Zoocci Coke Dope-assisted "DND" and Candyman, that marked a clear turning point, expanding his audience, sharpening his sonic identity, and positioning him as a cultural mainstay rather than a momentary success.

FLVME's body of work reflects a deliberate evolution, balancing introspection with accessibility, and minimalism with impact. His collaborations span a wide range of influential local and international artists, including Nasty C, AKA, Ricky Rick, Sjava, Blxckie, Stogie T, Amanda Black, Maglera Doe Boy, 25K, Priddy Ugly, A-Reece, Westside Boogie, Guapdad4000, Doctur Dot (EarthGang), and others.

His latest full-length album, BLVCK & WHiTE, marks a pivotal moment in his career; a cohesive body of work that reflects balance, precision, and artistic clarity from an artist fully in control of his sound and narrative. The project underscores FLVME's position not as an emerging act, but as a durable, era-defining voice within South African hip-hop.

Beyond music, FLVME operates at the intersection of culture, fashion, and brand collaboration, continuing to expand his footprint as both an artist and creative partner.
